Prospect Snapshot

Owner	Revenue	Team	Stage	Close Rate	Location
Andrea Passarini	~$250K (est.)	5	Stage 3	Not stated	Pompano Beach, FL

Revenue is a medium-confidence estimate from HubSpot ($0–$250K band) — no dollar figure was stated on the call. Close rate not stated; audit uses 15% default.

Dominant Buying Motive: FREEDOM

Andrea wants a firm that runs on documented systems instead of on her personally — the explicit, immediate precondition for the five-year retirement she described.

"double/triple revenue"

"SMB Team proposed a fractional executive to implement proven operational playbooks, not sell new software"

What she wants:

- A firm that runs on systems, not on her. Playbooks and accountability so the team can operate without her touching every file.
- Room to breathe now. ~80-hour weeks down, without giving up the caseload she's built.
- A real retirement in five years. The systems work is the explicit precondition for stepping back on a defined timeline.

What is stopping her:

- No documented workflow. Nothing covers intake through off-boarding beyond what's in Andrea's head.
- Thin leadership bench. Ops led only part-time by her son, a financial advisor without legal-ops experience.
- Self-imposed growth ceiling. Marketing paused to stay under ~10 new cases/month — operations, not the market, is the constraint.
- No financial baseline. No revenue, close rate, or case value to measure the growth goal against.

Why No Marketing Package (Yet)

- This was not a marketing call. The transcript frames it as fractional-executive/operations work — playbooks, not lead generation.
- The firm intentionally paused marketing to protect its ~10 cases/month capacity, not to grow lead volume.
- Call-Purpose Override applies. Marketing moves to Phase 2 once operations catch up — see section_11_workings.txt.

Why This Coaching Package

What it does for her:

- A dedicated coach builds the intake-to-off-boarding workflow with her, not just advises from a distance.
- Turns tribal knowledge into playbooks the paralegal team can run without her.

Elite Coach | $2,600/mo bundled

- Revenue band $250K–$400K places the firm in the Elite Coach tier.
- FCOO Advisor is the closer match to 'fractional executive' but is hidden below the $500K revenue floor.
- ~12.5% of estimated monthly revenue — well under the 35% cap, and the only Phase 1 spend.

Why This Ad Spend (Phase 2 — Not Sold Now)

What it does for her:

- Shows what's possible once operations scale past the current ~10 case/month ceiling — not a Phase 1 ask.

Recommended Ad Spend Range (Phase 2 planning only):

- Conservative: $3,500/mo — channel-minimum basis.
- Aggressive: $14,000/mo — 20%-rule basis off the stated 'double/triple' goal on the $250K estimate.

Estimated Return on Investment:

- Conservative: ~5 cases x $4.25K = ~$22K/mo vs. $3.5K spend = ~6.3x return.
- Aggressive: ~25 cases x $4.25K = ~$106K/mo vs. $14K spend = ~7.6x return.

Estimates only. Aggressive case count exceeds current capacity on purpose — it's the Phase 2 ceiling, not a Phase 1 target.

How the range was calculated:

- Blended family law + immigration CPL ~$83–$100; 15% close rate; Miami-Ft. Lauderdale Tier 2 (1.3x) geo multiplier applied to the 20% rule.
- No ad spend is in the Phase 1 total — the 35% cap check applies only once Phase 2 is active.

If She Pushes Back

"Why isn't there a marketing package in this proposal?"

The call was about operations, not leads — the firm paused marketing on purpose to protect capacity. Selling marketing now would work against what she asked for.

"We're already turning cases away — why do we need this at all?"

More demand than the firm can safely handle, with no documented system to change that. Elite Coach builds the workflow to absorb more volume later and gives Andrea real hours back now.

"$2,600/month feels like a lot for coaching with no leads attached."

Roughly 12.5% of estimated monthly revenue, well under the 35% cap — and it's the only spend recommended right now.
