Dominant Buying Motive: TIME

Dan wants AI to carry the repeatable work so he can focus on legal work, without adding payroll.

> "my life is chaos, and there's a lot of things pulling on me in different directions."

> "the more I can push off the AI to do some of that work, then I can also then focus on the actual legal workup stuff."

> "I have someone just come in and be like, bam, okay, this is working for you, let's go, right?"

What he wants:

- Time back. Fewer things pulling at him each day.
- Someone to build it. A person who makes AI work for him.
- Automated follow-up. Reminders, updates, and content that go out alone.
- No new payroll. His hiring rule is "eat what you kill."

What is stopping him:

- No time. AI is "just another thing on my list to do."
- Learning curve. Learning AI himself is what he struggles with.
- Data security. He needs a platform safe for client data.
- Open items. Shane's license; Google vs. Microsoft is undecided.
- Past brush-off. Once told he was too small for coaching.

Why This Fractional CTO Package

What it does for him:

- A named person leads the AI rollout, so it leaves Dan's list.
- Reminders and client updates get automated, one build a month.
- Dan learns by watching it work, with training videos.

Fractional CTO Level 1 | $3,797/mo

- Matches the AI-led call: a CTO-style service, one automation a month.
- Sold as a single product at its stand-alone price, so no bundle savings. Setup is $0.
- Seller override. Level 1 needs $400K+; HubSpot says $0-$180K, he says under ~$700K. Confirm.

Why There Is No Ad Spend

What this does for him:

- The proposal stays on what Dan asked for: AI, automation, and time back.
- It avoids selling marketing he did not ask for and has no stated gap for.

Recommended Ad Spend Range:

- Conservative: None. No marketing or ads package is recommended.
- Aggressive: None. Dan did not ask about leads, ads, SEO, or the website.

Estimated Return on Investment:

- Not calculated. There is no ad spend, so there is no ROI projection.

Marketing can be revisited later if Dan asks about lead generation.

Cap check and approvals:

- 35% cap: $3,797/mo is 25.3% of revenue at $180K and 6.5% at $700K (under the cap).
- Revenue under $300K: scoping approval is needed. Under $250K, confirm 4 months of funds.
- Reviews: counts are unconfirmed. Verify Google live before the call.

If He Pushes Back

"You told me before I was not big enough to work with."

He came back through the AI seminar ad. The AI products are built for small teams. Confirm revenue first, since Level 1 has a $400K floor.

"I can just learn this myself with Claude Max."

He already pays for Claude Max, Copilot, and Spellbook. He said he has no time and calls AI "another thing on my list." The fCTO builds it for him.

"Is my clients' data safe in this?"

He called a secure platform "a big deal." Do not promise compliance. Confirm the security details with the team and send them in writing.
