Dominant Buying Motive: PEACE OF MIND

She wants a firm that runs without her holding every piece, so she can sleep at night and be present in her free time.

> "I mean, also just be able to sleep at night, being able to pay all the bills without having to worry about it."

> "Be in my free time and be more present and not have to be stressed about it."

> "I want… intake to… run more smoothly without me having to be involved in every step of the process."

What she wants:

- Sleep at night. She wants every bill covered without worry.
- Fewer hours. She works about 50 a week and wants 40 or less.
- Intake without her. She wants it smooth with her out of every step.
- Owner pay back up. She named $195K, and said $225K would be better.

What is stopping her:

- No KPIs. She says she is bad at KPIs and has no time to build them.
- Owner bottleneck. "I can't do everything." Case movement runs through her.
- Weak case prioritization. Not enough urgency, and no clear way to spot good cases.
- Cash flow gap. By her figures, about $41-42K comes in and about $55K goes out.
- Decision clock. She may decide in six months whether to keep the firm (speaker inferred).

Why No Marketing Package

What we heard:

- She is not calling about marketing. "I don't have a problem with leads coming in."
- Leads are "halfway decent" once she works them, so the gap is operations.
- Existing vendor: iLawyer runs her SEO and Google profile, and she says it does well enough.
- Budget: adding ad spend while cash is tight would not match what she asked for.
- Free wins: GBP category, review habit, and the old MapQuest address are already in the audit.

Why This Coaching Package

What it does for her:

- Gives her a KPI system for a contingency practice she says she cannot build alone.
- Puts intake and case movement on a rhythm so the team can run it without her.
- Moves her toward 40 hours and a firm she does not have to carry home.

Elite Coach + FCOO Advisor | $5,694/mo bundled

- Revenue band $400K-$1M with a small team: this is the table pick for coaching plus ops.
- Seller locked this package on 2026-10-20. Revenue-table default was Elite Coach Plus at $3,200/mo.
- Rep framed the choice as 1:1 fractional COO vs. group coaching, and said coaching fits first.
- Includes weekly group coaching, masterminds, virtual quarterly workshops, and one in-person workshop.

Why No Ad Spend

What it does for her:

- Keeps every dollar on the operations help she asked for.
- Avoids new ad spend while cash flow is the main stress.

Budget fit:

- Ad spend: none. No marketing or ads package is part of this plan.
- Share of revenue: $5,694/mo is about 13.7% of about $41.7K monthly. Cap is 35%.
- Fallback: Elite Coach Plus at $3,200/mo if the price is the sticking point.
- Stretch risk: she has drawn down savings. Confirm what she can commit before sending.

Rep pitch numbers from the call (ROI multiples, guarantees) are not firm facts. Do not repeat them.

If She Pushes Back

"I wasn't sure my last purchase was the best use of my money."

She said this about the earlier AI product (00:02:06). Tie this plan to two gaps she named: no KPIs and intake that needs her. Offer Elite Coach Plus if she wants a smaller first step.

"I can't take on more cost right now."

The plan is about 13.7% of her monthly revenue with no ad spend. She said she would draw on credit "if I'm planning strategically and what I'm doing makes sense" (00:38:25).

"Do I need both coaching and a COO?"

She was weighing exactly these two. Coaching is the first fit (00:27:39). The FCOO Advisor adds hands-on ops help. Bundling saves $1,600/mo versus stand alone.

"I already have a marketing company."

Agreed, and this plan does not replace iLawyer. The report only flags quick fixes for them: the GBP category and the old MapQuest address.
