Prospect Snapshot

Owner	Revenue	Team	Stage	Close Rate	Location
Bob Boeshaar	~$500K	3 (+1 contract)	Stage 3	~50%	Seattle, WA

Dominant Buying Motive: FREEDOM

Bob wants a firm that runs without him so he can take real time off with his family.

> "the business side is dependent on me. So I can take like a week off and everything runs fine and they don't need me."

> "ideally I'd like to do maybe a 10-hour workweek, something like that, so a quarter time."

> "more time for my family, less stress. I'm able to do some volunteer work."

What he wants:

- Time back. A week off first, then 30 days, and a roughly 10-hour workweek.
- The CEO seat. He wants to set the vision, not answer email.
- AI that works. He booked because he wants AI to raise his productivity.
- A bigger firm. An associate by June and $2M gross in 2-3 years.

What is stopping him:

- He is the bottleneck. At least half of his 40-hour week is work others could do.
- Email overload. Two to three hours a day for Bob, about two more for staff.
- Behind on client work. A letter was missed before a deadline.
- Cash crunches. He wants uneven cash flow evened out.
- DIY habit. He has been "thinking of doing it myself."

Why This Legal AI Workforce Package

What it does for him:

- Moves email and first drafts off his desk so he gets hours back.
- Turns his AI experiments into one system for the team.
- A weekly working session makes AI a daily habit, not a side project.

AI Workforce Pro – Starter (3 seats) | $1,050/mo bundled

- The call was AI-led: he booked for AI Workforce Pro (00:01:37).
- Starter (1-4 users): 3 seats x $350/mo. Month-to-month. No stand-alone price.
- Seat count assumed from team of 3. Confirm who gets seats.
- Confirm LAW delivery has launched and has capacity before sending.

Why This Operations Package

What it does for him:

- Builds the roles and handoffs so decisions stop routing back to Bob.
- Plans the associate hire and onboarding ahead of the June target.
- Turns a week off, then 30 days, into a plan instead of a hope.

FCOO Advisor | $3,297/mo bundled

- Seller override (Slack, 10/14): replaces Starter marketing + Elite Coach Plus.
- Stand-alone is $3,797. Bundling saves $500/mo.
- Revenue is about $500K, the FCOO floor. Confirm it.
- Includes group coaching. Bob is in CRISP, so pitch it as ops, not coaching.

Why No Marketing Or Ad Spend

What this does for him:

- Gets his capacity back before adding more leads to a full desk.
- Leaves marketing for when the associate is hired, as you told him on the call.

Why it is left out:

- CRISP is active. He is about 5 months into a roughly 18-month term (00:07:12-00:07:47).
- You set the order. Marketing "can be down the line to bring in that new hire" (00:19:02).
- He is stretched. "I'm kind of overwhelmed, but I want more" (00:05:41).
- Demand exists. About 60% of leads come from Google and AI, about 25 leads a month, half qualified, about half of those sign.
- No ad spend, ROI projection, or ad-range math applies. Total spend is $4,347/mo, 10.4% of monthly revenue.

Free wins to lead with now:

- Switch Google hours to match the 7-day answering service.
- Start a review-request routine. Review counts are unconfirmed, so verify live first.

No competitor ad, LSA, or 3-pack data was observed. Do not cite any.

If He Pushes Back

"I'd rather just do the AI myself."

He already built email and case-letter agents, yet email still takes 2-3 hours a day and he is behind. Team seats plus a weekly session make it a system, not a side project.

"I'm already in CRISP. I have a coach."

Nothing here replaces CRISP, and no marketing is proposed. The FCOO builds roles, accountability, and handoffs. Group coaching comes with it but is not the point.

"We have a lot of cash crunches. Can I afford this?"

Total is $4,347/mo, about 10% of monthly revenue, under the 35% cap. The AI seats are month-to-month at $1,050/mo, the lowest-commitment piece.

"I need more leads, not more operations."

He said "I know I need to increase volume," but he is behind today. New leads land on the same bottleneck. Marketing fits once the associate is hired.
